IN GOD™ WE TRUST

Jerry Falwell, religious fundamentalist and Bush supporter, had this to say regarding the September 11 terrorist attack in New York City: "God continues to lift the curtain and allow the enemies of America to give us probably what we deserve ... I really believe that the pagans, and the abortionists, and the feminists, and the gays and the lesbians who are actively trying to make that an alternative lifestyle, the ACLU, People for the American Way ~ all of them who have tried to secularize America ~ I point the finger in their face and say, 'You helped this happen.'"

Dear Friends,

Hello, and greetings from the Joliet state pen - yes, the same joint that John Belushi got paroled from in The Blues Brothers. I was transferred to this rathole three weeks ago from a downstate prison so that I could testify in a lawsuit I'd filed against the prison system, & nice folks that these swine are (not) they wouldn't let me bring any reading material with me, so I've been sitting in this cell, twiddling my thumbs. Till yesterday, when someone laid a copy of Residue #5 on me. I was laughing so hard that the pigs thought I'd been smokin' a doobie, & took me for a drug test! Just thought you'd like to know that you've lightened up an old cons day.

Peace,

Police mistake man's vitamins for heroin

Associated Press

NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. — For six weeks, Malvin Marshall sat in jail because police thought he was carrying heroin in his pocket. Police didn't believe him when he said it was mushy vitamins.

On Monday, the charges were dropped. Lab tests showed he was telling the truth.

The substance was found in a small bag in the watch pocket of Marshall's pants when he was taken to the hospital Sept. 17 with an undisclosed illness.

"I didn't know it was there," said Marshall, 27. "The tablets were all mushy. They had been washed in the washing machine."

Police performed a field test and concluded the substance was 3 grams of heroin. But follow-up tests by the state crime laboratory proved otherwise.

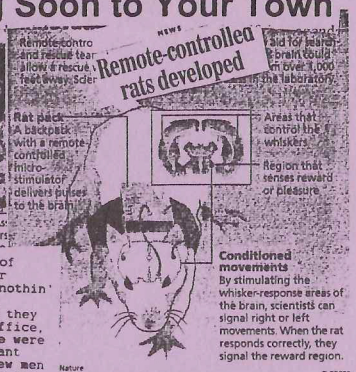
Homosexual Parades . . .Coming Soon to Your Town

Dear Brother Roger,

Hello, and greetings once again from the grey brick hotel. Thanks for the copy of Residue 6 which arrived via turtle express a couple of days ago. After reading it along with my friends, we all agree that you are one sick person - and thus would fit in quite nicely here! Everyone got a kick 'bout Jesus' dope stash up his ass... ah, truth is stranger than fiction.

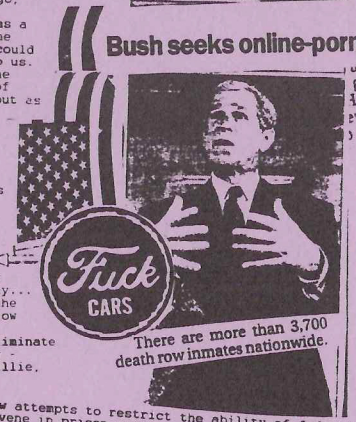
As for your wishing to use my letter in your upcoming book, sure, feel free to do so. It's not as if my reputation could be hurt any more, as my publicist Osama would say. And as for your question regarding my lawsuit against the prison system, well, it's a bit of a lengthy story, but if you've got the ear, I've got the time. Here goes....

Osama bin Laden poster



I've been locked down in the Illinois Department of Corrections since 1967. When I first came into it, our library sucked big time (still does); it consisted of nothin' but novels like Zane Grey and magazines like National Geographic, and if I wanted to obtain a copy of a book they didn't stock, I had to order it through our business office, assuming that I had the funds to purchase it. As there were no paying jobs within the prison at that time, this meant that most men were simply screwed, as there are very few men of means in here. In 1971, a group of us at Stateville got together and filed a lawsuit in federal court in Chicago, arguing that the prison's policy of not allowing us to receive packages of books/magazines/newspapers, etc., was a violation of our first amendment rights, and in 1976 the court agreed. The result was that friends and family could now send us periodicals that people wished to donate to us. At this point, the suit lay dormant until 1987, when the prison system incorporated a total ban on our receipt of catalogues, which might sound trivial to an outsider, but as you will see, was quite important to us.

In 1974 I successfully challenged the prison's ban o our being allowed to buy tape players; when we won this privilege, we obviously needed catalogues in order to buy tapes. (They couldn't be ordered for us by outsiders.) When they then prohibited us from receiving catalogues, this eliminated our ability to buy tapes, duh.... As music is one of those forms of release for many of us, this too had to be challenged, and once again I went back into the same federal court. In response, the D.O.C. began transferring me from one prison to another, in an attempt to break my will, which only served to piss me off even more. Anyway... in 1992 (yes, justice for us in here surely runs slow) the court once again ruled in our favor, and they had to allow catalogues in again. At this point, the suit again lay dormant until 1977, when the D.O.C. filed a motion to eliminate the court's previous rulings, due to a change in the law - signed by no other than that paragon of virtue, Slick Willie, in cohorts with Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.



CBS admits 'f translation didn't matchn

2A PIONEER PRESS 9-7-01

BY JOYCE M. DAVIS
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — CBS News has conceded that its magazine show "60 Minutes" mismatched an English-language translation with the Arabic speaker's words in a documentary on Palestinian suicide bombers.

In the documentary, which aired last month, a man identified as Abu Wardeh described how he recruited young men to be suicide bombers against Israel. As he spoke in Arabic, the English voiceover quoted the man as saying:

"I described to him how God would compensate a martyr for sacrificing his life for his land. If you become a martyr, God will give you 70 virgins, 70 wives and everlasting happiness."

Some Muslim leaders said the English translation did not match the Arabic the man spoke and charged that CBS had fabricated the translated quote. Leaders of the Muslim Public Affairs Council said the translation seemed to ridicule Islamic concepts of heaven.

Abu Wardeh's identity is not known. Hewitt words we meant to be said. Hafez, Washington bureau chief for TV network Nessma, stood by its interview.

"Paradise has many things in it. It said it has everything a man would wish for. It has 72 angels ... or wives. It has the eternal blessing that people would receive there. ... It has so many things that I don't know about and nobody even can count."

Instead of the word "angels," CBS translated the Arabic word "hoor'ain" as "virgins." Osmar and Maher Hathout, a Muslim scholar with the Islamic Center of Southern California, who also heard the portion, said a more appropriate translation would be "angel" or "heavenly being."

They said such descriptions of paradise aren't meant to be taken literally, just as many Christians do not believe heaven has

KILL & FUCK YOUR TELEVISION

My lawyer says that a ruling could come at any time... or in a year. He also said that if either side wins big in the case, the other side will probably take it upstairs, which means filing an appeal to the appellate court. And victory, but against these jerks, any victory is appreciated.

now you probably know more about prisons that you'd ever dreamed, no? If by chance you've got any questions, feel free to ask.

Am going to bring this to a close for now; if by chance you've got any old issues of your perverted thinking laying around, we'd really appreciate it. And what's the difference between erotic and perverted??? When you use a feather, that's erotic; when you use the whole chicken, that's perverted....
